

STATE OF MAINE JUDICIAL BRANCH
PANDEMIC MANAGEMENT ORDER

Order Issued December 22, 2020
(revised April 2, 2021)
(revised April 30, 2021)

Emergency Order and Notice from the Maine Supreme Judicial Court
Concerning Access to State Courthouses

In light of public health concerns arising from the novel coronavirus (COVID-19), Maine's Judicial Branch continues to adapt its processes and protocols in order to adhere to the guidance provided by the Maine and United States Centers for Disease Control and Prevention and comply with the Governor's Executive Orders. Although Maine rates of infection had remained relatively low, recent events in certain counties have caused an uptick in new cases that the Maine CDC has described as "very concerning." This rise in incidence requires increased vigilance. As a result, the Judicial Branch has put in place additional safeguards at its courthouses. Those safeguards consist of universal use of the COVID-19 exposure screening questions. To implement those changes, the Court issues the following order:

Effective on May 17, all persons entering Maine's state courthouses will be required to respond to the COVID-19 exposure screening questions.<sup>1</sup> All members of the public and all attorneys will be required to enter all courthouses through the public entrances. Those attorneys possessing and displaying entry screening bypass cards will be permitted to bypass the weapons screening component of entry screening, but will be required to answer the COVID-19 screening questions.

Dated: April 30, 2021

For the Court:

Andrew M. Mead
Acting Chief Justice
